Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from A School System as an Educational Laboratory To this Bulletin its projectors at Harvard and Newton attach special significance. It records the beginnings of an enterprise in which the Harvard Division of Education hopes in part to realize one of its fundamental aims - the solution of educational problems through research in the schools. The program of investigation the Bulletin presents is suggestive; and as this program is gradually elaborated and carried out either in Newton or elsewhere, it promises to yield results of objective value. Of equal importance is the cooperative scheme by which it is proposed that these results be reached. The study of school problems is not solely a function of university investigators, but of all teachers; and that teachers share the scientific labor which educational progress now demands is essential both for the sake of the school and for the sake of the teachers themselves. Dr. Learned has himself traced, in a study about to be issued by the Harvard University Press, the growth of teachers in Germany, as a class, toward the genuine professional freedom and mastery which such sharing produces. This Bulletin records what is probably the first attempt in America to make a school system its own educational laboratory. A second Bulletin in this series is shortly to follow, setting forth the results of the effort to secure scales for the measurement of eighth grade English Composition. The results of other studies now in progress will be published in subsequent issues. About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books.
