Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Just the other day, I was feeling pretty lousy. With a high temperature, feeling alternately hot and cold, it was an absolute shoo-in that I had an infection and a fever, but being a stoic, I tried to shake it off without visiting the doctor. Unsuccessfully as it turned out, so I relented (eventually) and off I went to see the man who could fix me up. I have a pretty good idea what is wrong and after I explain the symptoms, so does he, but here s the thing. What is the first thing that he does? He takes my blood pressure. I don t have a blood pressure problem as far as I am aware - I have an infection - but the first thing he does is take my BP. Maybe this scenario sounds familiar? I would guess so, because it is almost inevitable that when you visit your doctor or any other health care professional, the first thing that they are going to do is take your blood pressure. Perhaps you have wondered why this might be the case, why your doctor should be so concerned about your blood pressure when 90 of the time, the condition that has driven you to their office or surgery has got nothing whatsoever to do with BP. However, if anything, you should be eternally grateful that your doctor is paying so much attention and looking after you so well, because high blood pressure is a massive problem in all developed Western countries, and the sooner you know about the problem, the better you are able to deal with it. If your doctor or any...
